Abstract

© Serials Publications. The importance of the research topic is determined by the lack of the single point of view and diversity of researches' opinions on political history of the Russian Civil War. The paper is aimed at shaping a common viewpoint on key aspects of the Civil War. The basic approach to the research problem is the objective analysis of events under consideration. The main findings comprise theories about the events of 1919-1920s in Russia, the analysis of the achievements of modern historiography of the Civil War and the conclusion about the dates of its end. The article submissions may be useful for researchers dealing with the Civil War, while running lectures or writing papers on history and historiography.
